

Hi guys!! Can you believe I'm ten months old? It's crazy, I'm almost one year old! This month has been totally crazy. First, there is Halloween. Apparently, Halloween is actually in October, but our meeting was the start of our month! My mom dressed me up as an animal called a "bat" that she says I look like. She was something called a "vampire", which apparently has really sharp teeth. All of my other friends also had costumes on, and they looked amazing. The highlight of my night was the hotdog eating contest, partially because I got to eat hotdogs, but mostly 'cause I won!! Everyone was so shocked that I won, but I knew I would because I love water and hotdogs.

I've gone on lots of adventures this month, with lots of people other than my mom. First, I went to the airport with Camryn. I saw so many interesting things, and Camryn bragged to my mom about how good I did after! A few days ago, I went to the mall with all the other pups, but I stayed with Makinna instead of my Mom, who stayed with Clover. I got to work with a wheelchair and a walker, and I did great around both. I also got to go back home this month, for a holiday called Thanksgiving! I got to see all of mom's family, and all of my dog cousins! I even saw my dachshund cousin, who's name is also Dolly. (She didn't really seem to like me though, I guess she didn't like sharing names.) I got lots of petting, and I got to go to HEB. I normally go to HEB a lot, but this HEB was super different, because everyone seemed to be there, because apparently Thanksgiving needs lots of food.

I also recently got to meet the queen of AggieLand, Miss Reville, Ma'am. She does her commands so gracefully! I was very impressed and honored to meet her. Apparently, she's in charge of a lot of people, and she knows that she's in charge. Anyways, the semester's almost over, so next month will be so different. I'll tell y'all about it next month, but for now, Bye!!!!
